

Marcella Wheatley

I remember as a child, the solitary boulder behind which I sat in the pasture, south of my home. Soaking in the spring sunshine, inhaling the aroma of Nature's reawakening, my face was inches from the early, hairy crocus as a still-lazy flies drone mixed with the trickle of the last-melting snow. I continue to especially enjoy creating a close up of nature's wonder.

Marcella grew up in Scott, Saskatchewan. She loves to share her knowledge and enthusiasm while teaching private lessons, workshops, day workshops in schools and weekly sessions for local community colleges.

Perhaps I could be classified a seeker, as I am constantly searching to expand my creative ways. I live with a need to continue learning, to share my moments in a fashion that allows you, the viewer, the freedom to feel, to think, to remember one of your moments. Atmospheric condition and light are the artists that help paint my world, sometimes rendering a careful composition, other times splashing on colour and letting my imagination create a work. However, I always return to the delicate images of nature, recognizing that a moment in time can change an entire scene.

Marcella works with watercolours, graphite, ink, coloured pencil, acrylic and has taken her hand to carving stone.

I invite you to visit my web site!

www.watercolor.ca

e-mail: marcella@watercolor.ca